

Applications of algebraic topology to distributed computing

Maurice Herlihy Sergio Rajsbaum
Brown University IMATE–UNAM

(2 talks)

In the past few years, researchers have developed powerful new tools, based on classical algebraic topology, for deriving lower bounds, impossibility, and decidability results for asynchronous algorithms and data structures. In this talk, we survey these results, focusing on the surprising ways in which classical topological techniques capture modern computational problems.